British Air Men Are Also Making Some Raids.

(By Times Special Cable.)

London, Jan. 25.—Although the reports of a Zeppelin raid on England last night are this morning seen to have been false, there has been a striking renewal of aerial activity on the continent. The Germans have raided Dunkirk in force, and British airmen launched an attack upon Bruges.

The German raid on Dunkirk resulted in considerable loss of life and damage to property. One account says ten aeroplanes took part in it. British aeroplanes assumed the defensive, and succeeded in bringing down one of the visitors. This method of defense is regarded by English experts as more likely to prove effective than the anti-aircraft guns with which the defenses of Dunkirk bristle.

It is believed here that the British raid on Bruges will be followed up by other attacks, as the Bruges docks are the head of the Zebruge ship canal system, which the Germans are using for the transportation of men, munitions, and even heavy artillery.

Commissioner Ellis stated that there were eight schools under Cateford, all of which he had seen the School Board and thought the matter would be arranged satisfactorily, and that they would soon be taking Hydrus.

Mr. Stewart is only the other day that the secretary of the Board of Education said they were not going to change to Hydrus.

Commissioner Ellis—All the members don't understand the matter, so we have arranged a meeting with the Board to discuss it. If they had Hydrus the would save $1,000 annually.

Mayor Wallace—You think the Council could take any action in the matter, as the Board of Education is independent of you?

Mr. Stewart—I think the School Board would be the best to take up this long, and then the other day increase it.

Commissioner Ellis—Well, they have asked us to appear before them, and I think the matter will be thrashed out.

Chairman Ellis stated that the new Hydrus schools was not yet provided.

RUSSINI STOOD LONG CROSS-EXAMINATION

Rebuttal Evidence Being Put In by the Crown To-day.

Murder Trial May be Concluded at a Night Session.

Without any preamble, the trial of Ruzal was given up with this remark. The defence was depending a great deal on Joseph and Mrs. McGowan, who were both in the witness chair. It was pointed out by Sheriff Dimmick that not only had these two important people come to Toronto, but they had afterwards left the city and returned to their own villages, was a powerful counter-argument, and the jury, who heard his testimony will be heard this afternoon, when he comes here with other men who want to Toronto to go home.

Every indication points to the trial being all day. With another evening session it may be concluded to-night, though it is not yet decided.

That morning's session was marked by several little trifles between the defence and the prosecution.

Mr. Davidson, in the cross-examination of the prisoner asked him about the fact that he had been in the city a week. He admitted being there and being sentenced for two months. He swore that he was not keeping the law.

The crown read the conviction, which stated that he had been sentenced to two months for being drunk. He admitted he might have been so charged.

After leaving the jury sentence given here for cutting and wounding, he swore, he came back. He had lost his temper, and he was angry with Joseph, the man he was going to shoot. He said he was angry with him all the time. He said he did not know for sure whether Joe was going to shoot him or not. He was shooting. He thought that Joe came to the door and he was waiting before and after the affair.

"Now, you were very much frightened when you saw the jury in the afternoon, in the night?"

"Yes, I was. The only time when I was not afraid was when the police man was on the corner."

"Did you ever see him in jail, each man calls out his friends?"

"I could not say, as it is thirteen years ago."

Hats from the Armies of the World

Allegri-Belgian Infantry

Not only does the war in Europe furnish us with styles in woman's dress, but the armies of history have supplied line, trimmings and color, and especially valuable by this influence in millinery. To trace all the armies of the world in the woman's headgear would be an endless task. Only the most popular will be considered, and when you keep in mind that the military trend is the main feature of hats you will be following the right lead and winning in any conflict of the styles.

You have seen the German helmet in many forms. It is also worn by the French soldiers, but there is a long horsehair tail that hangs at the back in France which really robs it of its dignity. The German helmet is here. It is of black velvet and fits closely over the hair. At the back is poised a high fantasia of burnt ostrich, the fine feathers being absent and the effect of this type of plumage being that of an osprey, without the cruelty.

The American colonial is with us. It is of black velvet, with a turned-up brim cut into sections and bound with braid or ribbon. In each section there is a fan of black feathers attached so that the stiff ends project in a smart line. This ornament is highly favored for the turned-up sectional brim. You can declare your independence when wearing this hat. It is worth your ardent support.

The kepi is worn by the Belgians, and in its modification of the first idea it is ready for your donning. This is of black velvet, with a flat top and flaring sides at front and back. There is a line of joining that is made to form a part of the decoration. At the front there are two large jet spear points, placed across the top.

The hat that is known in the millinery world as the "shako" is related to the original hat worn by the armies of the United States, France and England. Of course, designers have modified it so that beauty of line will decorate beauty of woman. The pompon of the original shako is echoed in the white ostrich pompon of this model, and a high fantasia rises in a stiff military style. This high turban can be more closely suggestive of the bearskin hat of England if it is of fur and has a high ornament or brush at one side. The English shako has not the unbecoming visor that the stiff hats of the French have. The visor would never do for any woman unless she were a perfect beauty.

From the soldiers of the French Revolution comes the three-cornered hat, or "tricorne," turned up and bound with braid that suggests the military inspiration. At the point in front there are two fabric wings rising in jaunty line.

There are Russian Cossack turbans and Scotch bonnets; there are folded hats that suggest the swirled headdress of India; there are ornaments that have been directly taken from the decorations of hats of all ranks of fighters. The military notes are being sounded with loud and stirring emphasis.

Since military suits have conquered the feminine world it is only fitting that the costume that hints of war and preparations for war should be completed by a military hat. Here is a group that will allow you to choose the most becoming.

GERMANS ATTACK AT THREE NEW POINTS

Make Assaults in the Argonne, in Alsace, in Flanders.

In Attempts to Regain Ground That Was Recently Lost.

Paris, Jan. 23.—Both reports issued by the French Government to-day reveal a determined effort by the German army in France and Alsace to recover ground lost by them to the allied offensive. It seems evident that the German command has been very active and heavy, not only in the Argonne and in Alsace, but in Flanders. To-night the German attack in the Argonne was so far to accomplish anything of importance, and the French are holding their positions. The areas of most violent fighting are around Fontaine Madame and Fontaine Lamotte, in the Argonne, and in the neighborhood of the heights of Harbarmont, north of Metz, in Alsace.

Hatred of Other Nations

England Was Ours to Be Despoiled
But France Was to Be Hated and Crushed.

It is common knowledge that Germany has for years been preparing for war. We have heard that our German kinsmen have been increasing their armaments, hoarding their food, and that they were the last of war into the national mind, wrote that the two taught school in Germany up to within a month of the outbreak of the war. I was a teacher at a Prussian Oberschule and I daily heard the harrowed words "We have been deceived."

I read of the Danish deeds committed by the Germans in Belgium I see in my mind's eye a class of innocent leds and seem to hear the master harp-tening them. Then the teacher, with his twinkling eye, starts, teaching his pupils the doctrine of rampant Kaiserdom, a devil's gospel. I will recall going for a walk with one of the staff, a few days ago, on a fine, clear, occasions an excellent fall. The conversation somehow turned to the Kaiser, and forthwith he burst into innuendo, threatening France with a new and more powerful day to day which the Germans refer to as the "When it comes off." "Wenn's losgeht."

This man's views on England were those of many other Germans. They were not far from the truth, even among the nations. With no other army to meet the German might, they were not far from the truth, even among the nations. Toronto Rowing Club
Beat The Argonauts;
Stratford Lost At Berlin

Many Intermediate O. H. A. Games Staged Last Evening—Paris Won From Brantford.

Toronto, Jan. 22.—In a sculler O.H.A. game that was featureless, and in which little good hockey was shown, Toronto Rowing Club defeated the Argonauts by the score of 4 to 1. In the first period it took Fair and Smith 15 minutes before they could score two goals in mediocre hockey. Argonauts scored their only goal in the second period, but they did not get it. As a matter of fact, Bud McLean, outside the two goalkeepers, appeared to be the only man on the ice who displayed what one would call first-class sculler O.H.A. ability. T. R. C. won because they checked back stronger, and because they played their positions better.

Collingwood, Jan. 22.—Before a record crowd of 300 hockey fans, a very close game was played by the score of 5 to 2 in the best game of the season. A win for Barrie would have meant the district hockey title. The local team had another home game, which they should win, and which would make them the better of the play only in the first period. A special time was used to convey 300 hockey fans from Barrie.

Bolton, Jan. 22.—Bolton played their return O. H. A. game with Weston here last evening. Bolton scored one goal in the first period. Second period started off with the home team making two goals, brilliant rushes on their opponents' goal, scoring twice and tying the score. Play was kept pretty well even until Weston's goal, each scoring another goal, making the score 2 to 2. In the second period 4 all. In the last period the fence was adorned by players from both sides frequently. Bolton at one time played five men to seven and seven to five.
